

What's Your Language Superpower?

SELF-CONFIDENCE

Along with enhanced communication skills and cultural awareness, your language superpower is self-confidence!

Whether you start as a baby or an adult, language learning is all about making mistakes until you get it right! Because you need to be vulnerable to use your language skills with others—in class or out in the world—you are developing a strong capacity for self-esteem and the resilience it requires to embrace and overcome challenges. Your courage and determination are valuable assets both professionally and personally, and they contribute to other skillsets like effective communication. You've got this!
